Matthew W. Hughey is Associate Professor in the Department of Sociology at the University of Connecticut. In December 2019, the Chair of British Cultural Studies is delighted to welcome him as the 2019 Gambrinus Fellow at TU Dortmund. Hughey’s research focuses on the relationship between the heterogeneous interpretations of race and the long-term staying power of racism and racial inequality. In his award-winning book White Bound: Nationalists, Antiracists and the Shared Meanings of Race (2012), Hughey developed his theory of white racial identity formation called “Hegemonic Whiteness.”
